NATIONAL HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH

Full engagement requires all different kinds of participation. When we engage as learners rather than experts, we can be curious together and create ways of belonging for all who wish to participate. Spectrum is pleased to share the work of Latinx graduate scholars in chemistry – Hector Argeuta Gonzalez (Heemstra Group), Ana Cheng (Wuest Group), Ayda Gonzalez de la Nuez (Conticello Group) and Misael Romero Reyes (Heemstra Group) – who have developed a resource guide in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month that offer ways to engage through readings, audio recordings, videos, social media, and activism.

There are many ways to make use of this resource:

- Individual learning – work through some or all of the activities on your own. Consider engaging with a partner or team for accountability and discussion.
- Group meetings – engage with one or more activities with your research group at an upcoming group meeting as a celebrating of Hispanic Heritage Month.
- Social media – share your engagement on social media,. Tell us what activities you completed and share a quote, photo, or reflection. Use the hashtag #EmChemHHM to help us find your contributions!

Visual Learner? Look for GREEN activities. Verbal Learner? Look for PURPLE activities.

Kinesthetic Learner? Look for RED activities. Social Learner? Look for BLUE activities.

Auditory Learner? Look for ORANGE activities.
